

Intellectual Property

Intellectual property (IP) is becoming a critical differentiator in business today, and it has never been more vital to develop sound strategies to procure, protect and leverage IP assets. Companies also realize the integral importance of the use and protection of technology, software and the Internet in their businesses; their competitive viability depends on it.

Clients look to the firm both for building IP portfolios and enforcing their patents in IP litigation alike. We enable clients to shape IP strategies that help achieve their business objectives.
