McGregor Love assists clients with entitling projects for commercial, residential, industrial, office, and mixed use.

McGregor works with local governments and other regulatory authorities to address the needs of clients related to environmental permitting and compliance, zoning, comprehensive plans, concurrency, site plan approval, variance and waiver requests, due diligence, and property rights. As a member of the firm's Renewable Energy Group, McGregor assists clients with permitting and development in the growing renewable energy industry. In 2024, McGregor became an adjunct professor at the University of Florida Levin College of Law teaching an innovative new law school course titled "Florida Land Use."

With a background in land use and business litigation, McGregor previously worked for other law firms where he focused on the representation of Florida businesses and business investors.
