Trevor Bird is a third-generation Vero Beach native and an attorney who advises clients on estate planning, probate and trust administration, and a range of corporate and real estate matters. He is committed to helping individuals, families, and business owners across the Treasure Coast protect their interests, plan for the future, and navigate important legal decisions with confidence.

Trevor gained early experience by shadowing the Honorable Judge Leticia Marques in the Ninth Judicial Circuit and working with an attorney providing pro bono services. He further developed his skills as a summer law clerk at the firm before joining as an associate.

Deeply connected to Vero Beach, Trevor returned home after completing his legal education to build his practice and serve the community where he was born and raised. His longstanding ties to the region reflect his commitment to providing thoughtful, client-centered representation and supporting local initiatives throughout the Treasure Coast.
