Whether you're new to brokerage or seeking a refresher, join attorneys Tara Tedrow and McGregor Love for an exclusive, free condensed version of their highly acclaimed land use course from UF Law School.

Aimed at brokers and real estate professionals, this course will teach you the basics of land use and zoning before moving into a discussion of entitlements under existing Florida law.

Topics will include:

- Foundations of Land Use and Zoning: The historical, constitutional, and statutory foundations of land use and zoning regulations in Florida, with a focus on the roles of local governments, state agencies, and the judiciary.
- Land Development Regulations: The various land development regulations, including comprehensive plans, zoning ordinances, and environmental regulations, that shape the use and development of land in Florida.
- Land Planning: The principles of land use planning, urban design, and smart growth strategies in the Florida context, emphasizing sustainable development practices.
- Permitting and Development Approval: The permitting and development approval processes, including site plan reviews, rezoning applications, and variances.
- Land Use Litigation: Various aspects of land use and zoning disputes, including administrative appeals and judicial review.
- Emerging Trends and Case Studies: The latest developments in Florida land use and zoning law, including relevant court decisions and emerging trends such as transit-oriented development, mixed-use zoning, and innovative planning techniques.
